THE CYBERCRIME BILL, 2014

Explanatory Note

(These notes form no part of the Bill but are intended only to indicate its general purport)

The purpose of the Cybercrime Bill, 2014 is to provide for the creation of offences related to cybercrime and for other related matters in Trinidad and Tobago. The Bill would be inconsistent with sections 4 and 5 of the Constitution and is therefore required to be passed by a special majority of three-fifths of the members of each House.

Part I of the Bill would provide for certain preliminary matters.

Clause 1 provides for the short title.

Clause 2 would provide for the Act to come into operation on Proclamation by the President.

Clause 3 provides that the Act shall have effect though inconsistent with the Constitution.

Clause 4 would define certain terms used in the Bill.

Part II of the Bill would create certain offences related to cybercrime.

Clause 5 seeks to create the offence of illegally accessing a computer system. This offence would carry a fine of three hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 6 seeks to create the offence of illegally remaining in a computer system which would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and two years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 7 seeks to create the offence of illegally intercepting non-public transmission or electromagnetic emissions to or from a computer system. This offence would carry a fine of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and imprisonment for three years on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 8 seeks to create the offence of illegally interfering with computer data and would include damaging or deleting computer data. This offence would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and two years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 9 seeks to create the offence of illegally acquiring computer data whether for personal use or for use by another person. This offence would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and two years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 10 seeks to create the offence of illegally interfering with a computer system or a person who is using or operating a computer system. This offence would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and two years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of three hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 11 seeks to impose greater penalties on persons who commits an offence under Part II and which affects critical infrastructure. This clause would define “critical infrastructure” as any computer system, device, network, computer program or computer data so vital to the State that the incapacity or destruction of, or interference with, such system, device, network, program or data would have a debilitating impact on the security, defence or international relations of the State or the provision of services directly related to national or economic security, banking and financial services, public utilities, the energy sector, communications infrastructure, public transportation, public health and safety, or public key infrastructure. An offence under this clause would carry a penalty of two million dollars and fifteen years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 12 seeks to create the offence of illegally producing, selling, procuring, importing, exporting, distributing or otherwise making available a computer device or programme for the purpose of committing an offence under the Act. This offence would carry a fine of two hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 13 seeks to create the offence of the unauthorized receipt or grant of access to computer data stored in a computer system and would carry a fine of two hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 14 seeks to create the offence of computer-related forgery. This would make it unlawful to input, alter, delete or suppress computer data which would result in inauthentic data and would carry a fine of three hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 15 seeks to create the offence of computer-related fraud and would carry a fine of one million dollars and five years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two million dollars and ten years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 16 seeks to create the offence of identity theft through the use of a computer system which would carry a fine of three hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 17 seeks to create the offence of child pornography through the use of a computer system or other information and communication technology. This offence would carry a fine of one million dollars and ten years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two million dollars and fifteen years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 18 seeks to create the offence of luring, which is the use of a computer system to set up a meeting with a child for the purpose of abusing the child. This offence would carry a fine of one million dollars and ten years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two million dollars and fifteen years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 19 seeks to create the offence of violating a person's privacy by capturing and sharing pictures or videos of a person's private area without his consent. This offence would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and two years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 20 seeks to criminalise the act of sending multiple electronic mail messages that are unsolicited and which causes harm to a person or damage to a computer. This offence would carry a fine of three hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Clause 21 seeks to create the offence of harassment through the use of electronic means with the intent to cause emotional distress. This offence would carry a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and three years imprisonment on summary conviction or a fine of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and five years imprisonment on conviction on indictment.

Part III of the Bill provides for certain enforcement provisions.

Clause 22 would provide for the jurisdiction of the Courts of Trinidad and Tobago as it would relate to its territorial limits under the Act.

Clause 23 would impose liabilities for offences committed by a body corporate or any person purporting to act in such capacity.

Clause 24 would empower the Court to authorize the search and seizure of apparatus and computer data necessary for establishing an offence or which has been acquired by a person as a result of the commission of an offence.

Clause 25 would impose liability on a person who has knowledge about the functioning of a computer system but who fails to render assistance to access computer data that is the subject of a search warrant.

Clause 26 would empower a Magistrate to order an internet service provider or any entity with a domain name server to remove or disable computer data that is being stored or transmitted in contravention of the Act.

Clause 27 would empower the Court to make a production order relating to computer data that is required for a criminal investigation or criminal proceedings.

Clause 28 would empower a Magistrate to order the expedited preservation of computer data if he has reasonable grounds to believe that the data is susceptible to modifications.

Clause 29 would impose liability on an internet service provider who intentionally and without lawful excuse discloses the details of an Order of a Court.

Clause 30 would give authority to a Magistrate, who has reasonable grounds to believe that data stored in a computer system is required for a criminal investigation, to order the partial disclosure of traffic data.

Clause 31 would provide that a Magistrate may authorize a police officer to utilize remote forensic tools if he reasonably believes that evidence cannot be collected without the use of such tools. The Schedule to the Act would stipulate the offences for which these tools may be used.

Clause 32 would empower the Court to order payment of an additional fine where monetary benefits were gained as a result of the commission of an offence under the Act or where loss or damage was caused as a result.

Clause 33 would empower the Court to order payment of compensation for loss or damage suffered as a penalty for offences under the Act and the procedure for making an application for such compensation.

Clause 34 would provide the procedure for the Court to make a forfeiture order and the treatment of property forfeited as it relates to any property used for, or in connection with, or obtained as proceeds from the commission of an offence under the Act.

Clause 35 would empower the Court to issue a warrant for the search and seizure, and a restraint order to prohibit the disposal of any property that is to be forfeited under the Act.

Part IV of the Bill seeks to make provisions related to internet service providers.

Clause 36 would provide that an internet service provider is not under an obligation to monitor the information which it transmits or stores on behalf of another person or to actively seek facts or circumstances which would indicate illegal activity. This clause also seeks to prohibit an internet service provider from refusing to comply with any order of the Court or other legal requirement.

Clause 37 would provide that an access provider is not criminally liable for providing access to or transmitting information prohibited by the Act under certain circumstances.

Clause 38 would provide that a hosting provider is not criminally liable for the storage of information prohibited by the Act under certain circumstances.

Clause 39 would provide that a caching provider is not criminally liable for storing information prohibited by the Act under certain circumstances.

Clause 40 would provide that an internet service provider is not criminally liable for enabling access, via electronic hyperlink, to information provided by another person in contravention of the Act under certain circumstances.

Clause 41 would provide that a search engine provider who creates an index of internet-related content or makes available electronic tools to search for information is not criminally liable if he does not initiate the transmission, select the receiver of the transmission, or select or modify the information contained in the transmission.

Part V of the Bill seeks to make specific provisions related to child offenders.

Clause 42 provides for the definition of child offender under the Act.

Clause 43 would impose lower penalties for offences that are committed by child offenders under the Act.

Clause 44 would empower the Court to impose liability on a parent or guardian with responsibility for a child offender.

Clause 45 would provide for certain matters, which the Court may take into account before sentencing a child offender.

Part VI of the Bill provides for certain miscellaneous provisions.

Clause 46 would give the Minister the power to make Regulations for the proper administration of the Act.

Clause 47 would repeal the Computer Misuse Act, Chap. 11:17.

- (b) detriment to another person’s health, emotional well-being, self-esteem or reputation.

PART III

ENFORCEMENT

22. (1) A Court in Trinidad and Tobago shall have <sup>Jurisdiction</sup> jurisdiction in respect of an offence under this Act where the act constituting the offence is carried out—

- (a) wholly or partly in Trinidad and Tobago;
- (b) by a citizen of Trinidad and Tobago, whether in Trinidad and Tobago or elsewhere; or
- (c) by a person on board a vessel or aircraft registered in Trinidad and Tobago.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1)(a), an act is carried out in Trinidad and Tobago if—

- (a) the person is in Trinidad and Tobago at the time when the act is committed;
- (b) a computer system located in Trinidad and Tobago or computer data on a computer data storage device located in Trinidad and Tobago is affected by the act; or

(c) the effect of the act, or the damage resulting from the act, occurs within Trinidad and Tobago.

(3) Subject to subsection (1), a Summary Court has jurisdiction to hear and determine any offence under this Act, if—

(a) the accused was within the magisterial district at the time when he committed the offence;

(b) a computer system, containing any computer program or computer data which the accused used, was within the magisterial district at the time when he committed the offence; or

(c) damage occurred within the magisterial district, whether or not paragraph (a) or (b) applies.

Offence by body corporate

23. Where a body corporate commits an offence under this Act and the Court is satisfied that a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who purports to act in such capacity—

(a) connived in or consented to the commission of the offence; or

(b) failed to exercise due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence, the director, manager, secretary or other similar officer or person purporting to act in that capacity also commits the offence.

24. (1) Where a Magistrate is satisfied on the basis of <sup>Search and seizure</sup> information on oath by a police officer that there is reasonable ground to believe that there is in a place an apparatus or computer data—

- (a) that may be material as evidence in proving an offence under this Act; or
- (b) that has been acquired by a person as a result of an offence under this Act, he may issue a warrant authorizing a police officer, with such assistance as may be necessary, to enter the place to search for and seize the apparatus or computer data.

(2) If a police officer who is undertaking a search under this section has reasonable grounds to believe that—

- (a) the computer data sought is stored in another apparatus; or
- (b) part of the computer data sought is in another place within Trinidad and Tobago, and such computer data is lawfully accessible from or available to the first apparatus, he may extend the search and seizure to that other apparatus or other place.

(3) In the execution of a warrant under this section, a police officer may, in addition to the powers conferred on him by the warrant—

- (a) activate an onsite computer system or computer data storage media;
- (b) make and retain a copy of computer data;
- (c) remove computer data in a computer system or render it inaccessible;
- (d) take a printout of output of computer data;
- (e) impound or similarly secure a computer system or part of it or a computer data storage medium; or

(f) remove a computer system or computer data storage medium from its location.

(4) A police officer who undertakes a search under this section shall secure any apparatus and maintain the integrity of any computer data that is seized.

(5) For the purpose of this section, “apparatus” includes—

(a) a computer system or part of a computer system; or

(b) a computer data storage medium.

Assistance

25.(1) A person who has knowledge about the functioning of an apparatus, or measures applied to protect computer data, that is the subject of a search warrant shall, if requested by the police officer authorised to undertake the search, assist the officer by—

(a) providing information that facilitates the undertaking of the search for and seizure of the apparatus or computer data sought;

(b) accessing and using an apparatus to search computer data which is stored in, or lawfully accessible from or available to, that apparatus;

(c) obtaining and copying computer data; or

(d) obtaining an intelligible output from an apparatus in such a format that is admissible for the purpose of legal proceedings.

(2) A person who fails to comply with this section commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine of one hundred thousand dollars and imprisonment for one year.

26. If a Magistrate is satisfied on the basis of information on oath by a police officer that an internet service provider or any other entity with a domain name server is storing, transmitting or providing access to information in contravention of this Act or any other written law, the Magistrate may order the internet service provider or other entity with a domain name server to remove, or disable access to, the information.

27. If a Magistrate is satisfied on the basis of information on oath by a police officer that computer data, a printout or other information is reasonably required for the purpose of a criminal investigation or criminal proceedings, the Magistrate may order—

- (a) a person in Trinidad and Tobago who is in control of an apparatus, to produce from the apparatus computer data or a printout or other intelligible output of the computer data; or
- (b) an internet service provider in Trinidad and Tobago to produce information about a person who subscribes to or otherwise uses his service.

28. (1) A Magistrate may, if satisfied on an ex parte application by a police officer of the rank of Superintendent or above that there are grounds to believe that computer data that is reasonably required for the purpose of a criminal investigation is vulnerable to loss or modification, authorise the police officer to require a person in control of the computer data, by notice in writing, to preserve the data for such period not exceeding ninety days as is stated in the notice.

(2) A Magistrate may, on an ex parte application by a police officer of the rank of Superintendent or above, authorise an extension of the period referred to in subsection (1) by a further specified period not exceeding ninety days.

Disclosure of details of an order

29. (1) If an order under section 27 or a notice under section 28 stipulates that confidentiality is to be maintained a person who is the subject of the order or notice and who intentionally and without lawful excuse or justification discloses—

- (a) the fact that the order or notice has been made;
- (b) the details of the order or notice;
- (c) anything done pursuant to the order or notice; or
- (d) any data collected or recorded pursuant to the order, commits an offence.

(2) A person who commits an offence under subsection (1) is liable—

- (a) on summary conviction to a fine of one million dollars and imprisonment for three years; or
- (b) on conviction on indictment to a fine of two million dollars and imprisonment for five years.

Disclosure of traffic data

30. If a Magistrate is satisfied on the basis of information on oath by a police officer, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that computer data stored in an apparatus is reasonably required for the purpose of a criminal investigation into a data message, he may require a person to disclose sufficient traffic data about the data message to identify—

- (a) the internet service provider; or
- (b) the path,

through which the data message was transmitted.

31. (1) If a Judge is satisfied on ex parte application by Remote forensic tools a police officer, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that computer data which is required for the purpose of a criminal investigation into an offence listed in the Schedule, cannot be collected without the Schedule use of a remote forensic tool, the Judge may authorise a police officer, with such assistance as may be necessary, to utilise such tool for the investigation.

(2) An application made under subsection (1) shall contain the following information:

- (a) the name, and if possible, the address, of the person who is suspected of committing the offence;
- (b) a description of the targeted computer system;
- (c) a description of the required tool, and the extent and duration of its utilization; and
- (d) reason for the use of the tool.

(3) Where an application is made under subsection (1), the Judge may order that an internet service provider support the installation of the remote forensic tool.

(4) Where a remote forensic tool is utilised under this section—

- (a) modifications to a computer system shall be limited to those that are necessary for the investigation;
- (b) modifications to a computer system shall be undone, so far as possible, after the investigation; and
- (c) the following information shall be logged:
  - (i) the technical means used;

- (ii) the time and date of the application;
- (iii) the identification of the computer system and details of the modification undertaken; and
- (iv) the information obtained.

(5) The police officer responsible for a criminal investigation in which a remote forensic tool is utilised under this section shall ensure that any information obtained by the utilisation of the remote forensic tool is protected against modification, unauthorised deletion and unauthorised access.

(6) An authorization that is granted under this section shall cease to apply where

- (a) the computer data sought is collected;
- (b) there is no longer any reasonable ground for believing that the computer data sought exists; or
- (c) the conditions of the authorization are no longer present.

(7) The Minister may, by Order, amend the Schedule.

(8) For the purpose of this section, “utilise” includes—

- (a) accessing a computer system;
- (b) developing a remote forensic tool;
- (c) adopting a remote forensic tool; or
- (d) acquiring a remote forensic tool.

Order for payment of additional fine

32. (1) Where a person is convicted of an offence under this Act and the Court is satisfied that monetary benefits accrued to him as a result of the commission of the offence, the Court may order him to pay an additional fine in an amount equal to the amount of the monetary benefits.

(2) Where damage is caused as a result of an offence under this Act, the person convicted of the offence is liable to an additional fine not exceeding the fine that the Court may impose for the commission of the offence that caused the damage.

33. (1) Where a person is convicted of an offence under this Act and the Court is satisfied that another person has suffered loss or damage because of the commission of the offence, it may, in addition to any penalty imposed under this Act, order the person convicted to pay a fixed sum as compensation to that other person for the loss or damage caused or likely to be caused as a result of the commission of the offence. Order for payment of compensation

(2) An order made under subsection (1) shall be without prejudice to any other remedy which the person who suffered the damage may have under any other law.

(3) The Court may make an order under this section of its own motion or upon application of a person who has suffered damage as a result of the commission of the offence.

(4) A person who makes an application under subsection (3) shall do so before sentence is passed on the person against whom the order is sought.

(5) For the purpose of this section, computer data held in an apparatus is deemed to be the property of the owner of the apparatus.

34. (1) Subject to subsection (2), where a person is convicted of an offence under this Act, the Court may order that any property— Forfeiture Order

(a) used for or in connection with; or

(b) obtained as a result of or in connection with, the commission of the offence, be forfeited to the State.

(2) Before making an order under subsection (1), the Court shall give an opportunity to be heard to any person who claims to be the owner of the property or who appears to the Court to have an interest in the property.

(3) Property forfeited to the State under subsection (1) shall vest in the State—

- (a) if no appeal is made against the order, at the end of the period within which an appeal may be made against the order; or
- (b) if an appeal has been made against the order, on the final determination of the matter, where the decision is made in favour of the State.

(4) Where property is forfeited to the State under this section, it shall be disposed of in the prescribed manner.

Order for seizure and restraint

35. Where an ex parte application is made by the Director of Public Prosecutions to a Judge and the Judge is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that there is in any building, place or vessel, any property in respect of which a forfeiture order under section 34 has been made, the Judge may issue—

- (a) a warrant authorising a police officer to search the building, place or vessel for that property and to seize that property if found, and any other property in respect of which the police officer believes, on reasonable grounds, that a forfeiture order under section 34 may be made; or
- (b) a restraint order prohibiting any person from disposing of, or otherwise dealing with any interest in, the property, other than as may be specified in the restraint order.

PART IV

INTERNET SERVICE PROVIDERS

36. (1) Subject to subsection (2), an internet service provider who provides a conduit for the transmission of information, shall not be responsible for—

- (a) monitoring the information which he transmits or stores on behalf of another in order to ascertain whether its processing would constitute or give rise to liability under this Act; or
- (b) actively seeking facts or circumstances indicating illegal activity in order to avoid criminal liability under this Act.

(2) Subsection (1) does not relieve an internet service provider from complying with any court order, injunction, writ or other legal requirement, which obliges an internet service provider to terminate or prevent an infringement based on any written law.

37. (1) An access provider shall not be liable under this Act for providing access and transmitting information if he does not—

- (a) initiate the transmission;
- (b) select the receiver of the transmission; or
- (c) select or modify the information contained in the transmission.

(2) For the purpose of this section—

“access provider” means a person who provides a service to facilitate the transmission of computer data between two or more computer systems by transmitting information provided by or to a user of the service in a communication network or provides access to a communication network;

“communication network” means a set of devices or nodes connected by communication links, which is used to provide the transfer of computer data between users located at various points or other similar services; and “transmit” or “provide access” includes the automatic, intermediate and transient storage of information transmitted in so far as it takes place for the sole purpose of carrying out the transmission in the communication network, and provided that the information is not stored for a period longer than is reasonably necessary for the transmission.

Hosting provider

38. (1) A hosting provider shall not be liable for the storage of information in contravention of this Act if—

- (a) he expeditiously removes or disables access to the information after receiving a lawful order from any appropriate authority to remove specific illegal information stored; or
- (b) upon obtaining knowledge or awareness, by ways other than a lawful order from any appropriate authority, about specific illegal information stored, he expeditiously informs the authority to enable it to evaluate the nature of the information and, if necessary, issue an order to remove the content.

(2) This section shall not apply when the user of the service is acting under the authority or control of the hosting provider.

(3) For the purpose of this section—

“hosting provider” means a person who provides a service to facilitate the transmission of computer data between two or more computer systems by storing information provided by a user of his service.

39. (1) A caching provider shall not be liable for the Caching provider storage of information in contravention of this Act if—

- (a) he does not modify the stored information;
- (b) he complies with the condition of access to the stored information;
- (c) he updates stored information in accordance with any written law or in a manner that is widely recognised and used in the information communication technology industry; or
- (d) he does not interfere with the lawful use of technology, widely recognised and used by the information communication technology industry, to obtain data on the use of the stored information, and acts expeditiously to remove or to disable access to the information he has stored upon obtaining knowledge of the fact that—

- (e) the stored information at the initial source of the transmission has been removed from the network;
- (f) access to the stored information has been disabled; or
- (g) a Court has ordered the removal or disablement of the stored information.

(2) For the purpose of this section—

“caching provider” means a person who provides a service to facilitate the transmission of computer data between two or more computer systems by the automatic, intermediate and temporary storage of information, where such storage is for the sole purpose of making the onward transmission of the information to other users of the service more efficient.

Hyperlink provider

40. (1) An internet service provider who enables the access to information provided by another person, by providing an electronic hyperlink, shall not be liable for information that is in contravention of this Act if—

- (a) the internet service provider expeditiously removes or disables access to the information after receiving a lawful order from any appropriate authority to remove the link; or
- (b) the internet service provider, upon obtaining knowledge or awareness, by ways other than a lawful order from any appropriate authority, expeditiously informs the authority to enable it to evaluate the nature of the information and if necessary issue an order to remove the content.

(2) For the purpose of this section—

“hyperlink” means a characteristic or property of an element such as a symbol, word, phrase, sentence, or image that contains information about another source and points to and causes to display another document when executed.

41. A provider who makes or operates a search engine<sup>Search engine provider</sup> that either automatically, or based on entries by others, creates an index of internet-related content or, makes available electronic tools to search for information provided by another person, shall not be liable under this Act for the search results if the provider—

- (a) does not initiate the transmission; or
- (b) does not select the receiver of the transmission; or
- (c) does not select or modify the information contained in the transmission.

PART V CHILD OFFENDERS

42. For the purposes of this Part, “child offender”<sup>Definition of child offender</sup> means a child who is convicted of an offence under this Act.

43. Notwithstanding any penalty prescribed under<sup>Penalty for child offender</sup> Part II or Part III, a child offender is liable—

- (a) if he is sixteen years of age or over—
  - (i) on summary conviction, to a fine of twenty thousand dollars and imprisonment for four years; or
  - (ii) on conviction on indictment, to a fine of fifty thousand dollars and imprisonment for seven years; or
- (b) if he is under the age of sixteen years—
  - (i) on summary conviction, to a fine of ten thousand dollars and imprisonment for three years; or

- (ii) on conviction on indictment, to a fine of twenty-five thousand dollars and imprisonment for five years.

Responsibility of parent or guardian of child offender

44. In any case involving a child offender, the Court may order the parent, guardian or person with responsibility for the child offender to pay any fine or penalty imposed on the child offender pursuant to this Act, unless the Court is satisfied that—

- (a) the parent, guardian or person with responsibility for the child offender cannot be found; or
- (b) the parent, guardian or person with responsibility for the child offender has not contributed to the commission of the offence by neglecting to exercise due care or control of the child offender.

Determination of sentence for child offenders

45. (1) In determining the sentence of a child offender, the Court may—

- (a) request an investigation and report by a probation officer, social worker, child psychologist or child psychiatrist; and
- (b) request a copy of any proceedings relating to the child offender from a Court with jurisdiction in family matters.

(2) In any case involving a child offender, the Court may—

- (a) place the offender in the care of a fit person;
- (b) make an order for counselling or any other rehabilitative intervention or treatment or for psychological evaluation and resultant assistance;

- (c) make an order for community service pursuant to the Community Service Orders Chap. 13:06 Act;
- (d) order that no conviction be recorded;
- (e) order that the proceedings be sealed and not divulged without an order of the Court; and
- (f) make such other orders as it deems fit.

PART VI

MISCELLANEOUS

46. (1) The Minister may make Regulations Regulations prescribing all matters that are required to be prescribed under this Act and for such other matters as may be necessary for giving full effect to this Act and for its proper administration.

(2) Regulations made under this section shall be subject to a negative resolution of Parliament.

47. The Computer Misuse Act is repealed.
