Procedure to be followed when accessing a document from the Office of the Prime Minister

How to Request Information

- General Procedure

The Policy of the Office of the Prime Minister is to respond to all requests for information both oral and written. However, in order to exercise the rights conferred by the FOIA (for example, the right to challenge a decision if a request for information is refused) requests must be made in writing. In order to access information that is not readily available in the public domain, an application must be completed on the appropriate form "Request for Access to Official Documents" available from the Office of the Prime Minister or any public authority.

- Addressing Requests

To facilitate prompt handling of a request, such a request must be addressed to the Designated Officer of the Office of the Prime Minister.

2039—Continued

- Details in Request

Applicants should provide details that will allow for ready identification and location of the records that are being requested. If insufficient information is provided clarification will be sought from the applicant. If the applicant is uncertain as to the details to be included he/she should communicate with the Designated Officer.

Requests not handled under the FOIA

- A request under the FOIA will not be processed to the extent that it asks for information that is readily available to the public, either from this Office or from another public authority.

Responding to your Request

- Retrieving Documents

The Office of the Prime Minister is required to furnish only copies of documents in its possession or which can be retrieved from storage, either in the National Archives or another storage centre.

Prior to the commencement of the Freedom of Information Act, 1999, old records may have been destroyed. The granting of a request for such documents may therefore be impossible. (Various laws and regulations give the time periods for keeping records before they may be destroyed).

- Furnishing Documents

An applicant is entitled to copies of information in our possession, custody or power. The Office of the Prime Minister is required to furnish only one copy of a document. If a legible copy of a document is not possible the Office of the Prime Minister may not attempt to reconstruct it. Instead, the best copy possible will be furnished and an indication of its quality will be mentioned in our reply.

Please note that the Office of the Prime Minister is not compelled to do the following:

- (a) Create new documents
- (b) Perform research for the applicant

2039—Continued

Time Limits

- General

The Office of the Prime Minister will determine whether a request for access to information will be granted as soon as is practicable but no later than 30 days after the request has been made, as required by Section 15 of the FOIA.

If a decision is taken to grant access to the information requested, the applicant will be permitted to inspect the documents or be provided with copies, if so requested. If it appears that processing the request may take longer than the statutory limit, the Office of the Prime Minister will acknowledge the request and advise the applicant of its status. Since there is a possibility that requests may be incorrectly addressed or misdirected, the applicant may wish to call or write to confirm that we have received the request and to ascertain its status.

Section 7 (1) (a) (vi)

Officers in the Office of the Prime Minister are responsible for:

1. the initial receipt of an action upon notices under Section 10;
